People think that if animals look similar, they live in almost the same way. The truth is that some animals live in special and surprising ways. Do you think all spiders build webs and eat insects? The water spider walks on water and catches tiny fish. Have you ever heard of a frog helping a tadpole by carrying it on its back? That is what some kinds of frogs do. Do owls always make nests in trees? No. Burrowing owls live in holes like rabbits. Strangest of all, some anglerfish can make a light, so they can eat smaller fish that come to look at the light.

In November 1902, President Theodore Roosevelt and some of his friends went on a hunting trip to Mississippi. After hours of searching, Roosevelt and his group had surrounded a helpless bear. One of the guides asked the President to shoot the bear, but the president refused and news reporters throughout the country spread the story of Roosevelt's kind act.

Not long after, a famous cartoonist named Clifford Berryman drew a cartoon based on Roosevelt's rescue of the bear. When a store owner in Brooklyn saw the cartoon, he decided to make toy bears to sell in his shop. He asked President Roosevelt for permission to use the name "Teddy's Bear" for his toys, as a reminder of the bear Roosevelt

Welcome to The Language Minute. I'm Sara Glass. Our topic today is idioms. We will compare human characteristics with characteristics of animals. Do you take a long time to get ready in the morning? We'll often say, "You're as slow as a tortoise." Do you feel unhappy and uncomfortable in certain situations? We may say that you are "like a fish out of water." We may describe someone who is very clumsy by saying he's "like a bull in a china shop." And here's one of my favorites; saying that someone is so disorganized that she's running around "like a chicken with its head cut off." How about someone who is always working? "As busy as a beaver." And how about these?; "as happy as a clam"; "as strong as an ox"; "like a fox in a henhouse." This last one describes someone who can't be trusted. Well, that's all for today. See you later, alligator!
